1.1. General

Incorporation

Stichting Microjustice4All (Microjustice) was incorporated on December 3th, 1996 by notarial deed. The foundation has its official seat in (2596 TE) The Hague, at the Van Hogenhoucklaan 60D. From now on, referred to as “Microjustice”.

Microjustice is registered with the Chamber of Commerce, number 41160018 (RSIN: 805877447) and is a charitable foundation under Dutch Law (“ANBI”).

Objectives Microjustice

Microjustice is an organization dedicated to legally empower the poor and victims of humanitarian disasters. By providing people with legal documentation and enabling them to live under the shelter of the law and enjoy the protection and opportunities it provides, Microjustice helps them to get out of the poverty cycle.

Microjustice’s mission is to promote the universal access to legal protection globally. For this global mission Microjustice has developed since 2018 the Legal Protection Barometer and the digital legal protection platform, that really have been almost accomplished in 2021 as basic tools for implementing the Microjustice mission.

With the provision of legal protection services Microjustice aims to enable all people to participate in society and encourage them to be self-reliant.

Legal Protection

Over the past twenty-four years Microjustice has developed its method to promote legal protection of all in practice, implementing field programs in three continents. This method consists of standardized legal service provision in identified basic legal needs of the target group(s), while undertaking bottom-up legal reform and advocacy activities. In this way Microjustice aims to establish sustainable legal service provision infrastructures for the legal protection, marginalized and victims of humanitarian disasters.

Focus

Microjustice helps to set up local infrastructures for affordable quality legal service provision with focus on:

1. Various civil documents as birth certificate to enable access to e.g. education, health care, social benefits, microfinance and voting;
2. Housing and land registration for property protection, access to collateral and investment opportunities;
3. Setting up businesses, cooperatives and other legal entities, and drafting contracts to increase income-generating activities and civil society participation;
4. Legal issues related to the above, mostly related to family law and inheritance matters.
5. Legal issues that are specific to a context, especially in post-humanitarian crisis rehabilitation processes.

1.3. Report on activities by the Director

The COVID-19 crisis has hampered seriously the work of Microjustice, having the teams confined to their homes in the different parts of the world, now being able to engage in field work and meetings with the target groups and stakeholders. All planned travel to Bolivia, Kenya, Jordan, Ukraine was not possible.

The forced immobility has allowed us to focus on the development of the new Microjustice method to global upscaling of its activities to promote legal protection. Thus, 2020 Microjustice has developed and implemented its new method:

1. Development of the Legal Protection Barometer on the basis of the Legal Inclusion Mapping (LIM) Method
2. Developed the digital Legal Protection Platform (LPP) method, and prepared legal protection platforms in Kenya, Bolivia and Serbia

Activities in networking, lobbying and public communication were limited to participating in the international gathering on SDG 16 in February in The Hague, organized by HILL. On the one hand, COVID-19 made traveling and meetings impossible, on the other hand we were in the middle of developing our new method and products. Thus once, the COVID crisis is over and the first Barometer and LPP are fully developed and tested, Microjustice will launch a campaign to promote Universal Access to Legal Protection and provide specific indicators to SDG 16.

1. Legal Protection Barometer

Since 2018, Microjustice has developed country specific reports consisting of so-called "legal inclusion mapping". For the country to which it relates, such report identifies to which extent its people have access to justice. Based on in-depth legal research, presence in the country itself, experts consulted and comprehensive surveys conducted, a country-specific report analyses the lack of access to lawyers, affordable legal services and basic legal documentation its people currently experience. The focus of these mappings has been on basic legal needs such as access to property titles, business registrations, use of contracts, wills and other civil and administrative documentation. For each country, the mapping includes recommendations on how access to justice can be improved.

In 2020, the mappings have led to the development of a worldwide Legal Protection Barometer, in which we have standardized and digitalized the research into an extensive database to be filled out by legal practitioners and experts in the specific country. The barometer will show in a concise manner the conclusions. Thus, the barometer identifies per country the groups in need of legal protection, the specific problems in the procedures and enforcement on a state level, the accessibility and affordability of legal assistance services, best practices and recommendations, allowing for comparative development to increase the level of legal protection in eventually all countries. The research serves as basis for setting up legal protection platforms.

Current mappings are available for Bolivia, Kenya, Serbia and will be used in 2021 to test and further develop the barometer database. Later in 2021, mappings will be undertaken with barometer method in Ukraine and Jordan, to be implemented gradually worldwide as of 2022. These mappings help shaping a tailored country-by-country approach for the content of the legal protection platform.

2. Digital Legal Protection Platform developed and prepared in Serbia, Kenya and Bolivia

To promote legal protection, Microjustice has developed a digital Legal Protection Platform (LPP). Once fully operational, it consists of country specific websites which citizens can access to obtain explanations on legal matters relating to immovable property, movable property, family matters, inheritance matters, business matters, damage claims, claiming debts and employment. Citizens can find answers to frequently asked questions and access basic legal documentation. The platform empowers citizens to obtain basic legal rights, for which they would otherwise lack the know-how, contacts or funding. The platform has the potential to include the option to match citizens in need of legal assistance on specific matters with lawyers who are registered with the website, depending whether and to which extent country-specific legislation would allow such lawyer involvement.

Draft websites are live for Serbia, Kenya and Bolivia.

Conclusion: Promotion of the Universal Access to Legal Protection

Law is a product of the society we live in, and a reflection of its priorities and values. Unfortunately, it is of limited value to the majority of people in their daily undertakings due to the lack of affordable legal services.

It should be a cornerstone of society, next to education and medical health care, to enable people to live full and productive lives. Universal access refers to affordability for all, based on the income of an individual. Whereas education and medical care are already widely recognized as most basic universal rights, Legal Protection's universal access is far from being developed. There is an immense amount of administrative and civil procedures that individuals have to observe and there are only a few free legal aid programs in rich countries for the poorest in a limited number of cases, and with focus on criminal defence to deal with it. Legal protection should be organized and funded by the state, according to the level of income of the people. It is a political decision which often is not seriously taken due to the high costs involved in free legal aid.

We have come up with an affordable solution that works with the already existing infrastructure of the countries, in such a way that when the donor funding ends, the individuals will still have access to legal protection with very little financing needed for maintaining the system.

If we leave criminal law cases aside, everyday justice needs can be narrowed to civil and administrative cases, and most of these problems repeat themselves in all countries, and can be standardized. They mostly refer to land/housing ownership rights, labour rights, debt claims, business claims and family disputes, legal identity.

In lower income countries, land issues, identity and documentation are the most common.

Also, access to legal advice, accessibility and assistance with their procedures and alternative ways to resolve disputes (like mediation centres) should be made available to citizens.

The question is, how much would it cost to ensure people's everyday justice needs are met in an effective and affordable way. We have come up with a number. But how much does it cost the economy to not have it covered?

Another problem is that simple legal actions which are compulsory to citizens, often involve complex procedures and unjustified legal costs. If the procedures are compulsory, they should be covered by the state or at least financed.

We are sure these problems have also been experienced by the health and education sectors in the past, and have been resolved through technology and by changing the service delivery model. Our model is realistic and has the potential to provide a better services at a lower cost, thus allowing countries to ensure universal access to legal protection.

These problems occur everywhere, although they are more visible in lower-income countries. So, will richer countries support poorer ones in delivering Universal Access to legal protection in the same way as they have done with health and education?

What we must surely do is to improve access wherever we can but also to lobby for change, legal and model wise, because in the end, the lack of affordable legal services only affects the law-obeying people, pushing them into illegality.

The income of Microjustice in 2020 was € 246,764 while the budget for 2020 was € 194,655.

The budget for 2021 is € 176,030.
